" One of the most attractive novels of the day. It is the pro duction of a lady of genius and taste; full of deep feeling and abounding in thoughtfand reflection."

"Both are excellent stories, with interesting plots skillfully worked out and characters artistically drawn. There are passages in these tales of surpassing beauty. The author is a shrewd observer of practical life and the narrations are very many contractions."

"This is one of those charming stories of domestic life that strike a sympathetic cord in every heart. All who have ever known the blessed ministry of an elder sister will read this book with delight. Her patience, her self-denial, her deep, pure love

"One of the best novels we have read for a long time; very beantiful and touching stories."

"These books go properly together and teach well a lesson early to be learned, that the glory of life is to live for others and for duty. This lady ranks justly with the authoress of 'Olive,' and the 'Head of the Family,' and this is no mean praise."

THE FIREMAN,
The most interesting work of fiction from the press of 1355. The reader's attention is caught with the first chapter, and "Finit" stares him in the face before the interest lessens. The book is like a MOVING PANORAM of ever-varying, always admired succession of new and pleasing scenes and exciting incidents, each chapter being more interesting than its predecessor. A feature that adds to its lasting meets is the fact of its mich monat restidious moralist could object to.

Y FATHER'S HOUSE:

OR, THE HEAVEN OF THE BIBLE.

BY THE REV. J. M. MACDONALD, D. D.

1 vol. 17mo. 81 25.

Principal Topics, selected from the Table of Contents—Imperfect Knowledge of Heaven; False Views; The Glory of Heaven; The Place; No More Sea; No Fain; No Sorrow; No More Death; No Night There; No Temple therein; Seeing, Cod; Absent from the Bedy; The Body Restorer; Relation of the Judgment to Heaven; Who will be there, who will not te there; Nothing that Deflicth; The Guide; The Preparation.

'I has seemed to the author that a work staring distinctly and carefully Christian doctrine on the subject of this volume is pequilarly called for, at a time when a morbid interest in so many quarters is manifested, and delusions are so rife, respecting the world of Spirite. The sublime verities of the Bible as the only authorized messages from the spirual world, are best suited to expose the puerile weakness of all other professed messages, and are therefore the best safeguard to those who are in danger of being led astrav."

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF GIRLHOOD.

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF GIRLHOOD.

By Mrs. Maxwers.

1 Vol. 12mo., Cloth. $1.

The above new Book, of which one large edition was taken immediately on its appearance, is pronounced by the critics to bee a "brilliant," exciting," and "interesting" production. From The Christian Observer, Philadolphia.

"No young lady who glaices through half a dozen pages of this volume will throw it asile unread. If a real autobiography, it is also a work of brilliant imagination—more interesting than romance—more exciting than faction. It is a drama of youthful life, joyous and sad by turns, sprightly, restless, exhibiting the parsions of more ardent nature."

From The Boston Daily Advertiser.

It is wrill written. The marrative is sprightly, and sufficiently varied to keep up an interest in the story."

From The Hartfurd Secretary.

We have seldom read a book which pleased as more. It should be welcomed to every Christian home."
